

Coaching for Student Impact:

Questions I ask during the Final Conversation

Remind the teacher of their goal

What was the baseline data when you started?

Where are your students now?

What has been the impact on your students' learning and engagement?

What has been the impact on your teaching practice?

Based on the work samples, what are your students' next steps?

What have you noticed about your own teaching practice since we began?

What are you most proud of in your growth as a teacher or leader?

What are your next steps as a teacher?

What will you continue or sustain beyond our coaching journey?

If you were to coach someone else through a similar goal, what would you focus on first?

How did you find the coaching process? What supported you most?

Let this conversation be a celebration of learning - for the teacher and their students. Keep it grounded in real evidence and honest reflection.
